

KENTUCKY IRISH AMERICAN.

VOLUME XXVI.—NO. 26.

LOUISVILLE, SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1911.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

UNDER BOND.

Messrs Higgins and Barry Held by Commissioner Cassin to Answer.

Superintendent Wilson Made Fine Witness For the Two Defendants.

Other Men Malignantly Assailed by Chief Prosecuting Witness.

STAND FOR LIBERTY OF PRESS

At 11 o'clock last Saturday morning Messrs. William M. Higgins and John J. Barry, representing the Kentucky Irish American Company, appeared before United States Commissioner Henry Cassin with their attorneys, W. M. Smith, to find out whether the charge against them of violating the United States mail laws should be upheld or dismissed. Commissioner Cassin was short and to the point. He said he had read Mr. Smith's brief carefully, yet he felt that there was sufficient evidence to warrant him in holding the defendants to answer to the Federal grand jury on October 10. He fixed the bond in each case at $200, which was promptly furnished, with Alderman James Treasay as surety. The examination had been conducted before Commissioner Cassin on Thursday afternoon of last week, at which time Frank McGrath, chairman of the City and County Committee, jointly accused with Messrs. Higgins and Barry, was acquitted.

Daniel E. O'Sullivan, erstwhile editor of the Critic and later of O'Sullivan's Opinion, was the chief complainant. At no time in his testimony did he deny anything said about him in the Kentucky Irish American of April 15, but he complained of blue pencil marks on a number of copies. Mr. O'Sullivan has been in the newspaper business so long that he ought to have known how to avoid the blue pencil.

In Attorney Smith's brief, of which Commissioner Cassin spoke, particular attention was called to the testimony of Thomas S. Wilson, Superintendent of second class mails and weigher of mails at the Louisville Post-office. Mr. Wilson had been called by the prosecution, or rather the Government. On his direct testimony he said that the Kentucky Irish American had been duly entered in the United States mails as second class matter, and that at all times it had complied with all of his instructions and requirements. The testimony of Mr. Wilson ought to show conclusively that the Kentucky Irish American had no intention of violating the law.

There is one point that was not allowed to be brought out in the examination before the Commissioner—the fact that Mr. O'Sullivan had written fierce screeds in O'Sullivan's Opinion and in the Critic and Herald.

The Kentucky Irish American is in possession of certain records that will show that O'Sullivan referred to Democratic leaders as "Prostitutes in houses of ill fame." The letters used were about as large as he could use in a newspaper. Time and again he referred to a former Councilman by his wife's name and always in terms of derision. In the Herald article that provoked a reply from the Kentucky Irish American O'Sullivan referred to the present Democratic City and County Committee as reeking with the fumes of stale beer and cheap whisky. In the publication of O'Sullivan's Opinion never was there an issue in which he did not abuse the Messrs. Whalen. He sought in one issue to arouse religious strife by dancing in faring headlines: "Forty-two Catholics on the Whalen ticket."

Was there a leak, or was it a coincidence? The Louisville Evening Post on Thursday of last week had the story concerning Messrs. Higgins, Barry and McGrath set up and printed before the defendants had been notified that warrants had been issued for them.

In conclusion the Kentucky Irish American desires to thank its many old and new friends for proffers of assistance in the emergency. It would be ungrateful did it set otherwise. At no time has it had any disposition to disobey the law, but it will stand always for the liberty and the exaltation of the press.

The character of this prosecution will be apparent to all when they learn the fact that we have received letters from Washington, D. C., containing positive information that no complaint against the Kentucky Irish American has ever been filed there.

CHANGES IN ASSISTANTS.

Rev. Father Donald J. Manning, associate rector of Holy Trinity church, New Albany, has been transferred to Richmond, Ind., where he will be associate rector of St. Mary's church. He will be succeeded by Rev. Father J. J. Ryan, who was recently ordained at St. Molnrad's Abbey.

ATTENDED JUBILEE.

Among the Kentucky clergy who attended the silver jubilee of the Rev. Father J. H. Hillbrand at Evansville, Ind., last week were Right Rev. Edmund M. Obrecht, Abbot of Gethsemane; Rev. Jerome Preiser, O. M. C., Louisville; Rev. S. A. Holleran, Irvington; Rev. Edward S. Fitzgerald, Owensboro; Rev. Edward J. Lynch, of Henderson; Rev. Joseph Odendahl, of Stanley; Rev. Ignatius M. Ahmann, of Covington; Rev. G. A. Weiss, of Louisville; Rev. T. N. Connor, of Owensboro; Rev. B. A. Cunningham, of Union county; Rev. A. J. Thome, of Louisville; and Rev. F. X. Havelburg, of Henshaw, Ky.

ADVANCING AGE

Has Begun to Tell on Venerable Pope Plus.

Advancing years and the worry of many responsibilities are beginning to tell on Pope Plus X., says the Rome correspondent of the Catholic Union and Times of Buffalo, N. Y. He writes:

The head of the Catholic church has entered upon his seventy-sixth year, having been born June 2, 1835. It must be admitted that the years of his pontificate have told well on Plus X., for they could scarcely do otherwise. With hair white as snow, of frame a good deal heavier than when he came from Venice, the Holy Father has not that powerfully athletic appearance for which he was distinguished eight years ago. I well remember how, at an audience a month or so after the coronation of Plus X., the prevailing thought in my mind was that a blow from the strong right hand of the new Pope should suffice to fell an ox.

But advancing years and a stormy pontificate have proved unable to make Plus X. one whit less kind than he has ever been. Those gray, kindly eyes that pierce into your very soul are still the same, always ready to twinkle at a jest or to grow serious in sympathy with suffering. Years of toil and suffering for the church founded by Christ have indeed made themselves felt exteriorly, but they have proved powerless to make any change in the strong, kindly soul to which the heart of Christendom has gone out.

VISITORS

From County Board Attend Meeting of Division 4, A. O. H.

Division 4, A. O. H., had a splendid attendance at its meeting on Monday night with President John H. Hennessy occupying the chair. The greatest enthusiasm over the picnic to be held at Phoenix Hill Park on July 20 was apparent. County President D. J. Coleman was on hand and complimented Division 4. John G. Hession, of Division 3, expressed his pleasure at seeing such an enthusiastic gathering of Hibernians, and hoped that members of Division 4 would pay a return visit to Division 3. Both Messrs. Coleman and Hession deplored the fact that several prominent Irishmen could be found boosting other societies instead of the A. O. H.

President Hennessy made a nice talk thanking County President Coleman and Mr. Hession for their visit and said he hoped all the county officers would follow their precedent.

Con O'Leary was elected to membership, and Harry J. Brady, the Division Treasurer and one of its old wheel-horses, was reported seriously ill. This news was received with regret.

FINAL REPORT

Of St. Louis' Bertrand Bazar and the Amount Realized.

The Executive Committee of St. Louis Bertrand's bazar had its final meeting on Wednesday evening, when the total sum realized was found to be $9,500—$3,000 having been collected by popular subscription and $6,500 realized from the sale of articles in the hall. The expenses amounted to $250, leaving $9,250 net. All of this money was turned over to Rev. J. R. Clark, O. P., Prior of St. Louis Bertrand's church, and was used by him in liquidating the heavy indebtedness on that church as well as meeting the cost of some alleys recently made.

The Holy Name Society booth was credited with bringing in the largest amount, $1,177.20; the Blessed Virgin's Sodality booth followed with $1,116.64; the Altar Society booth $694.66; the bean board and telegraph office $668.66; the country store $637.14; Plus X. sewing school $590.11; St. Thomas Sodality $544.26; the refreshment stand $309.33; door receipts $206.70; and the receipts at the wheel of fortune $231.82. This is conceded to have been the most successful bazar ever given by the parish.

GOES TO LEBANON.

Rev. Father Charles Italam, who was recently ordained to labor in this diocese, has been assigned to Lebanon as assistant to the Rev. Father Joseph A. Hogarty, pastor of St. Augustine's church there. Father Hogarty has a very large white congregation and is preparing to build a church for the large number of colored Catholics of Lebanon and vicinity. Father Italam will be of great assistance to the overworked pastor.

ANSWERED.

"God Save the King" Adapted From an Old Irish Air.

Able and Spirited Reply to an Editorial in Louisville Times.

Weak Response From Man Who Wrote at Treason and Plots.

HE FLEW TO THE BIBLE

That scion of the house of Disraeli who writes leading editorials for the Louisville Evening Times, who insults Irish Americans and Catholics whenever he has an opportunity, took occasion on last Saturday to flaunt "God Save the King" in the faces of a free American people. To the housestops he shouted his knowledge of Bermondsey and Whitechapel. Possibly he is more familiar with those districts than with music. "God Save the King" is really an adaptation from old Irish music. The Times' editorial was one to catch the unwary, but there was one upon the watch tower. The Rev. Father Patrick Walsh, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, answered the Times, and his answer was published in that paper on Wednesday afternoon. Father Walsh said:

The leading editorial in last Saturday's Times at first filled me with hope that its brilliant and versatile editor had discovered some new evidence of the origin of the air known as the English national anthem, but on further perusal I found none. In place of any new evidence, there was the suppression or exclusion of an historical development of facts recently brought out by Dr. Gratian Flood. "The first public performance of 'God Save the King' is stated to have been at a dinner in 1740, when it is said to have been sung by Henry Carey, as his own composition, both words and music."

The fact that Henry Carey was the author of both words and music is testified to by J. Christopher Smith, Handel's amanuensis, and by Dr. Harrington's "Groves' Dictionary of Music, vol. II, page 188. And this is now further confirmed by the recent researches of W. H. Gratian Flood, M. D., embodied in his work, "A History of Irish Music," on page 272. Henry Carey, an Anglo-Irishman, is best known for his adaptation of an old Irish folk song to "God Save the King," the English National Anthem.

Along with the above said suppression, there are a few glaring assumptions, so enveloped in a sweet flow of language that an ordinary reader would not notice them. The first assumption is that the origin of the air is a mystery and that it continues. Another assumption of the editor is contained in this strange passage: "If it is really to be ascribed, in the form we all know, to Henry Carey, who died in 1743, we shall have to deny its origin to England, since it is positive it was a favorite in France a century before."

Who does not know that, if it is really to be ascribed to Henry Carey, we must deny its origin, not only to England, but also to France, and everybody else? Who does not see in these words the assumption that the air, in the form we all know, is precisely the same as the one which was a favorite in France a century before? This is the very thing that needs demonstration. Mere assertion will not suffice. The proof is this: bring it forth; then and not till shall I concede one jot or tittle. In the last paragraphs the editor tells us that it is always difficult to follow the genesis of national music; that anthems are evolutions that grow by accretion, so that no one can say for certain the time and the place they came into being. Who does not know the wonders that have been accomplished by honest research in recent years? Many false claims have been traced to their source and truth has come forth triumphant.

A striking example of this appeared in Sunday's Courier-Journal, in the magnificent vindication of the character of Webster by Henry Watterson.

The editor's favoring the claim of John Bull is best answered by Encyclopedia Britannica: "A claim made on his behalf to the composition of the music of the national anthem has given rise to much discussion, but it seems now generally agreed that the claim is not well founded." Vol. IV, page 518. The same may be justly said of the claim assigned by the editor for the composition of the words, the time of suppression plots, treason, etc.

An answer like this would squelch any ordinary man. Not so a son of the house of Disraeli. He answered Father Walsh's argument in the same edition of the Louisville Times by evading the question. Listen to this evasion:

"The Rev. Father Patrick Walsh takes us to task with respect to certain speculations and assertions in a recent editorial with the above caption. As to one of them touching on Henry Carey, the musical 'Anglo-Irishman,' whatever that is, we may join frankly and heartily in his friendly dig; even as an Irish 'bull' we are afraid the statement would not pass muster, and the joke, though it be on ourselves, is too good for us to advance the obvious pleas of a lapsus penne."

"But we did not credit the authorship of the British national anthem to Dr. John Bull, though much might be said for his claim, which is at least as traditional as Carey's, and we do continue to hold to the view that the words and the air were well known in the earliest Jacobean days, and are strengthened in that belief by a circumstance which may fairly be held to be corroborative."

"The version of the Bible commonly, though erroneously, known as the 'authorized,' was the work of a body of scholars and divines between 1534 and 1540. The years 1603 and 1611, considered as literature it is a wonderful performance and may be taken as setting forth the best English practice of the day. There, in the second book of Kings, chapter XI, verse 12, will be found the following description of the coronation of Joash: 'And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the testimony; and they made him king, and anointed him; and they clapped their hands, and said, God save the king.'"

"We have been told that the Hebrew words could be more accurately rendered, 'May the king live (forever);' and any event the use of the phrase, 'God save the king,' may be accepted as proof that it was a popular form of salutation a century before Carey flourished. The translators simply transferred the common and accepted greeting to a place where it would be at home."

Originally the Times man talked about the air, so did Father Walsh. When he saw he had been mistaken the Times man forsook the air and took refuge in the Bible. He replied to honest criticism by evasion and facetiousness.

The Times man is evidently of the opinion that Irish-Americans belong to the Times because he thinks the Republican party owns the negro. Young Disraeli's wings need clipping.

ON THE GO.

The King and Queen Will Spend a Week in Ireland.

Important among the events following coronation day in London will be the visit of the King and Queen to Ireland, from July 7 to 12. They will arrive at Kingstown on board the Victoria and Albert, where they will land and be received by the Lord Lieutenant and driven to Dublin. The programme for the succeeding days of the royal visit is thus announced:

July 8—Opening of Royal College of Science. Visit to Phoenix Park races. Dinner at the Castle.

July 9—Service at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Visit to Artane Industrial School. Inspection of pensioners and girls at Drummond Institute.

July 10—His Majesty receives addresses at the Castle and holds a levee. The Queen receives an address from women of Ireland and visits Combe Hospital. Visit to Leopoldstown race course. State banquet at the Castle. His Majesty afterward holds a chapter of the Order of St. Patrick.

July 11—The King inspects the Royal Irish Constabulary at the county lodge and attends a review of the troops and the presentation of colors in Phoenix Park. Garden party at the Castle in the evening.

July 12—Their Majesties leave Dublin and embark at Kingstown aboard the Victoria and Albert.

SURE TO WIN.

One of the candidates for high honors in Democratic ranks that will carry Louisville and Jeffersonville county today is James G. Garnett, of Adair county, who aspires to be Attorney General. Mr. Garnett is an attorney of standing in the State and has friends all over Kentucky. Young, alert, trained and alive to the people's interests, he will make an ideal Attorney General for the State. Mr. Garnett is the only candidate for Democratic State honors from the Eleventh district. It is generally conceded that Mr. Garnett will be nominated, and if he is he will carry to the Democrats a big Republican vote from his friends in the Eleventh district. His nomination means additional strength to the Democratic party.

SUMMONED SUDDENLY.

Deep sympathy is felt for the family of Miss Virginia Harbour, a member of the 1911 graduating class of the Girls' High School, who died at her home near Huber's Station, Bullitt county, late Sunday night. Death was due to uremic poison following an illness of a few hours. The deceased was not quite nineteen years old, and was the daughter of John H. T. Harbour, of the Louisville Water Company. Besides her parents she is survived by four sisters; Misses Mary Jane, Clara, Mildred and Pauline Harbour, and a brother, Harvey Harbour. The funeral took place from St. Mary Magdalene's church in this city on Wednesday morning.

WILL RUN AGAIN.

Hon. Michael C. Thornton has announced his candidacy to succeed himself as a member of the Indiana Legislature from Floyd county. Mr. Thornton has been an ardent advocate of improvement in street paving laws.

STARS CONTINUE TO INCREASE

Next Tuesday will be July 4, the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and the Stars and Stripes will be displayed on every hand. It is not amiss therefore to say something concerning the history of the American flag.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress in session at Philadelphia established the insignia of the American flag. It would have been difficult for Congress to have improved the consciousness of the resolution it adopted in these words:

"Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

As early as July 4, 1775, the attention of the Committee of Safety of the Colony of Pennsylvania was directed to the protection of the Delaware river, to prevent the entrance of warships of Great Britain, and the construction of galleys, fire boats and other watercraft for the defence of Philadelphia was begun. Thirteen boats were afloat on the Delaware river on September 15 that year, several provided with two howitzers, besides swivels, pikes and muskets. By August 1, 1776, the number of vessels in commission was twenty-seven, having 768 men enrolled for active service aboard them. The fleet was at that time recognized as the Pennsylvania State Navy.

William Richards, who had been appointed on May 21, 1776, the "husband" or storekeeper of the fleet, desiring to be provided with colors and signal flags, addressed in August a letter to the "Council of Safety," in which he said:

"I hope you have agreed what sort of colours I am to have made for the support of St. Paul's and the Lord's church, and as they are much wanted."

"You will please order how you will have the Goods paid for that are bought for the Provincial Store, for I am in want of a sum of money for that and the Signals."

Writing again, on October 15, he repeated the need of colors for the support of St. Paul's and the Lord's church, and called attention to the want of a design or delineation by which to pattern them, saying:

"Commodore Barry was with me this morning and says the Fleet has not any Colours to hoist. If they should be called on Duty; it is not in my power to get them done until there is a design fixed on to make the Colours by."

Seven months later, on May 29, 1777, entry was made in the minutes of the State Navy Board:

"An Order on William Webb to Elizabeth Ross, for fourteen pounds twelve shillings and two pence, for Making Ships' Colours, &c., put into William Richards's Store, £13 12s. 2d."

The celebration in Philadelphia, on July 4, 1777, of the first anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence occasioned the first public display of all the "ships' colors" made by Elizabeth Ross for the vessels of the fleet of the Pennsylvania State navy.

Want of space in the newspapers printed during the war of the Revolution for the immediate publication of important information delayed for weeks the public announcement of the institution of the flag. Writing at Albany in his journal on August 3, 1777, Dr. James Thatcher, a surgeon in the Continental army, alludes to finding in the newspapers reading the city announcements of the resolution establishing the flag of the United States. As late as September 5 that year the announcement of the passage of the resolution appeared in the Boston Gazette.

In the defence of Fort Schuyler, earlier known as Fort Stanwix, on the west side of the Mohawk river, 110 miles from Albany, the most memorable of the incidents connected with it was what is believed to have been the first display on a battlefield of the flag of the United States. Newspapers had been brought to the fort by some of the officers of the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment containing the resolution of the Continental Congress instituting the flag. This becoming known to the garrison, an eager desire was expressed to have the tricolored emblem flying above the fort.

A hasty search was made early on Sunday morning, August 3 for suitable material with which to make the flag. An ample quantity of blue and red cloth for the stripes was readily found, but nothing appropriate in color for the field seemed obtainable. The searchers were finally gladdened by the generous tender made by Capt. Abraham Swartwout of his blue cloth cloak for the material wanted for the field.

PRIMARY

Today to Nominate Democratic Candidates for the Various State Offices.

William Addams Now Seems to Be the Most Favored Leader.

Lovers of Law and Order in the Republican Party for Franks.

WILL THE POST FLOP AGAIN

The Democrats of Kentucky are indulging in a State wide primary today and before tonight candidates will be nominated for all the State offices and Congressman Ollie James will be nominated for the United States Senate. The withdrawal of Senator Paynter left a clear field to Mr. James. Instead of letting the reins loose he rode all the harder.

William Addams, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, is going ground every minute and looks like a winner. The attempt to prohibit Hon. Ben Johnson on account of his religion has acted as a boomerang on the McCrory machine, and now none but disappointed office-seekers are so poor as to do it honor. Former United States Senator Blackburn has denounced the machine and comes straight out for Judge Addams.

In Louisville the Cynthia man will have a big majority. He has the support of Mayor Head and the city administration and will receive the support of the rank and file of Democracy. On all sides the adherents of both candidates have praised about Judge O'Keefe and the City and County Committee for its fairness in the appointment of election officers for the primary. They have been complimented by the McCrory managers on this point.

The Herald's political dooper stated on Thursday that McCrory would carry Louisville easy because Henry Watterson and Col. W. B. Haldeman were championing him. Col. Watterson votes in the county. Col. Haldeman votes in the city. They have one vote each. Does the Herald's dooper argue that two votes will elect McCrory? It is evident to any one that pays attention to politics that the rank and file of Louisville Democrats are not for McCrory.

Only a few days more and the Republican convention will be upon us. It looks like Hon. E. T. Franks, of Owensboro, is making a winning fight against Judge Edward C. O'Rear in the race for Governor.

Many mean things are being said about Judge O'Rear. Some of them would not look well in print if they were blue penciled.

The Republicans that oppose alighting, that stand for law and order and that love liberty and the right to worship at their own shrine are rallying to the support of Mr. Franks.

There is one man on the Democratic end that appears to be making a runaway race. That is J. W. Newman, candidate for the nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture. Much of his strength is due to Councilman Ben Sand and his labor cohorts.

The Louisville Evening Post begins to fear the Judge. O'Keefe will not carry Louisville. In the event that O'Rear is defeated look out for a desertion from the Republican ranks—the Post will flop again.

DEHELE—KEEBLER.

Miss Lillian Dehler and Roy Carter Keebler were united in marriage Wednesday evening at Calvary Episcopal church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James G. Minnekegrode. Misses Elsa Schultz and Elizabeth Vogt were the bridesmaids, and Mrs. Harvey Giles was the matron of honor. Young Keebler, a brother of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were Cecil Hardin, Wright Barr, Ferrell Burto, Harvey Giles, all of Louisville; Sidney Riddle, of Nashville, and Fred Wheeler, of Lexington. The music attending the marriage was directed by Frederick A. Cowles, the organist. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Dehler, on Third street. The bride is a graduate of Vassar College and has been much admired in local social circles.

FATHER ABELL ASSIGNED.

Rev. Father John Abell, recently ordained, has been appointed assistant to Father James L. Whelan, pastor of St. Alphonsus church in Daviess county. Father Richard Maloney, who has been assistant there, has been made pastor of St. Augustine's church at Reed, Henderson county.

BUSY FAMILY.

Rev. Father Linus Braun, O. F. M., of St. Boniface Convent, is in Cincinnati this week. Last Saturday his brother, Oswald Braun, was ordained a priest as a member of the Franciscan order and on Sunday celebrated his first mass. On another day this week the two brothers officiated at the marriage of a third.

GREETING.

With this issue the Kentucky Irish American rounds out its twelfth year. It has been twelve years of hard work, but the work has been lightened by the encouragement of friends and patrons. It may have made mistakes. Those were unintentional and have been forgotten. The Kentucky Irish American has tried to furnish the news and to call attention to abuses. In that it stands on the Kentucky "Bill of Rights" that grants liberty to the printing press, a liberty to examine public documents and to criticize men in public life. The Kentucky Irish American has never wittingly told an untruth concerning anybody. If it has told the truth that has injured the feelings of the guilty, so much the better. For this we have absolutely no regrets.

It is our intention to publish news of interest to Kentuckians, Irish-Americans and German-Americans as of yore, and to fight evils and abuses of public confidence wherever we find them.

The Kentucky Irish American bids you greeting on its twelfth birthday and asks your continued patronage.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Next Tuesday the people of this nation will celebrate Independence day. From the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico and from Cape Cod to the Pacific coast flags will wave, bunting will flutter in the breezes and in many sections there will be wells and fountains of oratory. Why?

Because on July 4, 1776, the American colonies announced their independence; that they had separated from Great Britain and tyranny.

During the past 135 years the nation has grown. The original thirteen colonies not only flourished, but they sent sturdy men and helpful women to found other colonies and build other States. Now the United States of America stands without a peer among the nations of the earth.

The United States is at peace with all the world. Her people love liberty and they enjoy liberty. On July 4 they will decorate their homes with flags. They may wear them on their bosoms. Therein lies their strength. Other nations know "The flags they wear are flags they'd dare to follow to the fray."

July 4 is a day to celebrate. It is not necessary to use fireworks and giant crackers, revolvers and dangerous pyrotechnics. Gather the children around you. Tell them about Concord, Bunker Hill, Washington, Wayne, Sullivan and the heroes of the Revolution. Recite the story of America's struggle from 1776 until the present. It is a pleasing and an interesting story.

And remember to tell them that Irish blood consecrated every American battlefield from the war of 1776 to that of 1898. The Irish standard has been beside the Stars and Stripes on every American field of valor. It was this that made the poet sing: "Old Glory's there—'tis you that's fair!"

No flag on earth like you!
And by your side I see with pride
Old Ireland's banner, too."

KEEP THEM AT SCHOOL.

The Milwaukee Citizen, one of the able Catholic journals of the day, under the head of "Parasitism With Childhood," goes after the people who sell the souls of their children for a handful of nickels. The Citizens says:

Whether the boy or the girl shall be high or low in the social and industrial scale depends largely upon the way three or four years of the life between the twelfth and seventeenth birthdays are spent. Some parents crave the earnings of their children between these years. The boy of thirteen can earn $3 a week—or perhaps $200 a year. In three years he can earn $600—but it may cost him his prospects in life.

Kept at school until sixteen, he might start life with a good common school education—probably with a year or so in the high school, to give him further ambition. Sent to work at thirteen, he is handicapped for life with an imperfect education—a scrawling penman, a bad speller and with no taste for reading. It is up to the parents to invest their children to the best advantage. Keep them at school!

KEEP THEM BUSY.

Now that vacation is here prudent mothers should see that their children are occupied with light duties in the house or garden. There is plenty for each little one to do in assisting mother. Putting in the winter coal, chopping wood and similar matters will save mother many a step and will keep the youngsters out of idleness and mischief.

The garment workers of Cleveland, Ohio, who are on strike on account of real or fancied grievances, are bound to lose when they start rioting. Police and bystanders have been seriously injured in the riots this week. Such conduct turns sympathy for unionism into disgust.

As soon as the winners in the Democratic State primary are announced let every Democrat take off his coat and work for the ticket.

It used to be O'Sullivan's Opinion, a paper for the people. Now what is the people's opinion of O'Sullivan?

Even the Post concedes that Mayor Head is governed by no man nor set of men.

DELEGATES

To Grand Council by Mackin's Men On Monday.

There was a big attendance and lots of interest at the meeting of Mackin Council on Monday night. The feature was the election of delegates to the Grand Council to be held at Carrollton next month. President Samuel L. Robertson presided and kept things moving in lively fashion. John Doran, C. Schaefer, P. Riddle, James Mullarkey and Ernest Wright were reported ill. One application was received. The Opera Committee made a partial report on "The Campus," and announced that the name of the opera for next year was "Terrace Tavern." The House Committee reported that the new shower baths were nearing completion.

The election of delegates to the Grand Council was a special order of business for 8:30 o'clock and at that time the hall was crowded with Mackin's members. The delegates chosen were:

William M. Higgins, Samuel L. Robertson, Dr. J. A. Casper, George Lautz and W. A. Link. Alternates—Henry Kerberg, George Simons, George Conder, Aloysius C. Link and Adolphus Andriot.

At the meeting next Monday the discussion of the new by-laws will be completed. A smoker will follow the business session.

NUNS COMING HOME.

Sisters Callista and Agnita, O. S. F., who have been teaching at St. Francis de Sales School, Charlestown, Mass., for the past six years, will arrive in Louisville Monday evening en route to St. Catherine, the mother house in Washington county. They will be only two of a number of Dominican nuns who are returning from the New England States to spend their vacations in Kentucky. Sisters Agnita and Callista are daughters of Jeremiah Kavanagh, of South Sixth street. It is probable that they will be allowed to spend several days in Louisville to receive friends and relatives at Holy Rosary Academy.

JOLLY HOUSE PARTY.

Mrs. Edward Fisher is entertaining a merry crowd of young people from this city at Sweet Sulphur Springs, Velpen, Ind., at a Fourth of July house party in honor of her two popular daughters, Misses Ruth and Irene Fisher. The guests are Misses Ruth and Irene Fisher, Wilhelm Ulrich, Marie Gibbs, Mary Michot, Virginia Watson, Grace Pfanz, Flora Roetenwald, Messrs Carl Fisher, Harry and James Gleason, Reed Werners, Jesse DeGraaf, Frank J. Higgins, George Lemo and Adolph and Otto Roetenwald. The party will spend a week at Sweet Sulphur, returning July 6.

NAVAL OFFICERS ENTERTAINED

Advises from Queenstown, Ireland, say that the officers of the American practice squadron entertained prominent residents of Cor and Queenstown on board the battleship Iowa last Saturday afternoon. The entertainment was a brilliant success and the Irish guests were loud in praise of the hospitality of their American hosts.

NEW ASSISTANT.

SURPRISE PARTY

Was in Store For Two Veteran Louisville Letter Carriers.

Last Saturday night the local branch of the National Letter Carriers held their regular monthly meeting at Liberty Hall, Walnut street, between Second and Third.

WILLIAM F. KOSTER.

and after the transaction of the usual routine business put over a surprise on two of the members. On June 1 William F. Koster and Charles Prather rounded out twenty-five years as messengers of Uncle Sam.

In recognition of their long service as carriers and their loyalty to the association each was presented with a handsome Morria chair. Fred F. Watkins, another letter carrier, made the presentation speech. Messrs. Koster and Prather were present, but neither had any idea of what was coming until the presentations were made. Mr. Watkins was quite felicitous as well as facetious in his presentation speech.

If an inspector had appeared upon their trail neither Koster or Prather could have been taken more by surprise, yet each responded as well as he could under the circumstances. After that there was a banquet and music.

TOO STRENUOUS.

Albert J. Venneman, of Evansville, Speaker of the late House of Representatives of the Indiana Legislature, declared last week that he was done with politics and that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for re-election. He said the game was too strenuous for a poor man, and that he expected to spend the next four years of his life attending to his profession and trying to lay up something for his family.

POSTPONED UNTIL TODAY.

On account of rain the festivities at Fontaine Ferry Park last Saturday night were postponed. President William A. The object of the picnic is to build a much needed hospital.

On Tuesday of last week Denver Council admitted twenty new members to its ranks.

Villanova College has conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty.

Colorado Springs will confer the degrees on July 18 and August 1 and 13. Many councils will send contingents for the third.

Syracuse Council exemplified the first degree last week for a class of ten. The others will be conferred this fall.

Indianapolis Council celebrated its twelfth anniversary last Sunday, when State Deputy J. C. Rogers and staff, of Kentucky, conferred the third degree on a class of about seventy. The celebration closed with a banquet at the Claypool Hotel.

THIRD PLACE.

Louisville Can Clinch Third Position in Present Series.

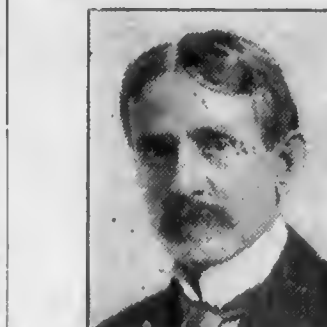

Mike Kelly's St. Paul team will play here again this afternoon and tomorrow, and Louisville by winning both games can entrench themselves in third place. Two old Louisville players are in the St. Paul line-up, Harry Howell, who is making a strong factor in the Kelly aggregation, and Delchanty, who is playing one of the best games in the association just now. The present line-up of Louisville was suggested in these columns last week, and the Colonels now have a team which should be a big factor in the fight for the pennant, the roster being perfect from a batting standpoint and only slightly weak in one place, second base, simply from the fact that the position is new to Manning Howard, but he can be depended upon to put up an average good game and which will be counter-balanced by his splendid hitting. The attendance at the games has been all that could be desired and shows that Louisville fans will surely support a first division team.

AVENUE THEATER.

Independent motion picture makers, who are supplying new reels, have of late produced a new line of pictures of an exceptionally fine quality, dealing with dramas, comedies and natural subjects, and many of these will be presented next week at the Avenue Theater. In addition there will be an unusually fine vaudeville bill, the numbers being new and attractive. The Avenue management is leaving nothing undone to make it one of the real amusement spots of the city.

CONTEST CLOSED.

Chickasaw Council, Y. M. I., of Memphis, Tenn., closed its membership contest Monday night at a meeting that filled the Washington street hall. The contest resulted in a most satisfactory gain in membership, and its close was celebrated by a mock trial and the opening of a pool tournament, after which luncheon and refreshment were served. George W. Cautlin, Phil Canale, Thomas Noonan and Hon. Samuel Bates have been doing active work for the Y. M. I. in Tennessee. Home Phone 7846.

CHURCH WAS REAL EDUCATOR

The Right Rev. Father J. M. Lucey, V. G., of Little Rock, Ark., editor of the Southern Guardian, in his issue of June 17 published a very able editorial on the origin and history of Christian schools. It is worth reading, hearing and remembering. It is seldom that a matter of this kind is so lucidly explained, and for that reason the Kentucky Irish American publishes the article in its entirety and as a matter of news. Father Lucey writes:

The first Christian school may be said to have been founded by Christ our Saviour when he gathered the apostles into his household for instruction in the principles of his religion. As the Bible relates, they lived with him as one family for the space of three years. At length he was able to say to them, "All things which my heavenly Father hath given to me I have made known to you," and "as my heavenly Father hath sent me, so I send you."—and I selected, instructed, ordained and commissioned you, so do you likewise, that thus my church may be perpetuated to the end of time. Although these words strictly speaking applied more to the doctrine of Christ than to the mode of education of the clergy, the example of the Saviour was followed, and the Bishop's house became an ecclesiastical seminary. St. Peter took as pupils Clement, Mark, Evodius and Linus, who he became his successor. St. John had Polycarp, Papias and others. St. Paul had Luke, Timothy, Titus and others. As a rule in the first centuries wherever there were a number of Christians a Bishop resided, and besides the ordained students, the priests who were subject to him, dwelt in the same house with him. The Bishop's house was frequently styled a monastery, on account of the regularity of life observed. Rural parish priests are first mentioned by the Council of Valson, held in 528. But it was not until the twelfth century that the office of parish priest was regularly instituted, and he was given parochial independence. The first Christian school was thus the Bishop's school for the education of priests; and natural enough as the first pressing want was clergy to spread the religion of Christ. Toward the fourth century these Bishop's schools or episcopal seminaries had a regular course of profane as well as ecclesiastical study, and were frequently expanded in the reception of students to receive those who might not enter the ranks of the clergy.

It was not very many years, however, after the Ascension of Christ that another kind of school called Cathedral school arose. It was the usual custom in the first centuries of the church to require candidates for admission to go through a two years' course of instruction each day in the vestibule of the church, where a priest or an authorized layman would explain the principles of the Christian religion. The honor of establishing the first regular school of this kind is generally accorded to St. Mark, the evangelist, who, twenty-seven years after the ascension of Christ, or in the year 60, established such a school in Alexandria, Egypt, one of the most remarkable cities of the world, where Ptolemy Soter had founded the magnificent library of 700,000 volumes.

The course of study in the cathedral schools of Jerusalem, under St. Cyril, its Bishop, very fairly represents what was pursued in the other portions of the Christian world. It consisted of twenty-three parts. The first eighteen was a summary of the Christian religion as set forth in the Apostle's Creed, and was intended for the first class. The remaining five parts were intended for the second class, to prepare them for the sacraments of penance, confirmation and the eucharist. For more than a century nothing beyond religious instruction was thought of. Gradually, however, secular branches were introduced. About the year 180 Pantanus, a very learned Stoic philosopher, became a convert to the Christian faith. In the school which he was authorized to establish he received permission to teach the various secular branches, and was perhaps the first great teacher to add this useful element to Christian education. After him came the celebrated genius of early times, Origen, who when he received authority from the Bishops of Caesarea to teach disposed of his worldly goods and limited his support to a few obol, or about fifteen cents a day. Although sacred scriptures was his chief study, branch after branch of secular learning was speedily introduced. About 200 years after Christ every branch of human knowledge, insofar as it had been cultivated anywhere at the time, was taught in the Christian cathedral schools. In the beginning of the third century Christians were expected to teach and to study the liberal arts, profane literature, philosophy and the Biblical languages, Hebrew, Greek and Chaldean.

CHANCE TO BEHAVE.

Out in Washington where the eight hour law has just gone into effect the first employer to be arrested for breaking the rule was a woman. Washington is the State where women recently covered herself with glory through being responsible largely for the recall of officers voted undesirable. It is one of the most recent States to grant to woman the right to vote. Now that she finds herself a real citizen it is to be hoped that she will not forget the high aim of citizenship set by the law abiding.

AN OLD FATHER.

Just a Story For Real
Old Fashioned
People.

Is there among any nation on earth such an abiding faith in the integrity of parents as among the Irish? It is part of their heritage, part of their religion. God Almighty gave Moses ten commandments. The first three dealt with the honor and respect necessary to the Deity, but before He commanded "Thou shalt not kill" He admonished "Honor thy father and thy mother." This is one lesson that children of Irish parents have learned. Those who neglect or forget the admonition become worse than outcasts.

Apocryph of this one of our good Irishman friends a few days ago said:

"Not very long ago a wedding party had assembled for the ceremony. The bride's father had not arrived. The groom became nervous and other members of the party were more or less visibly agitated. The bride remained as tranquil as a mountain lake. To those around her she said: 'Don't give yourself a moment's uneasiness about my old daddy. He never failed me yet.'"

"She knew that her father was reliable; that she could depend upon him at any hour, day or night. She had hardly finished when her father appeared on the scene. Once again he had not failed her. What a happy world it would be if every girl and boy could and would say 'My old daddy never failed me yet.'"

"How many old daddies are leading double lives, disappointing the hopes and destroying the faith of their children. Nothing can be more tragic nor more terrible than that moment in a child's life when it is discovered that the father can not be depended upon."

"I once witnessed such a tragedy myself. A sudden disaster overwhelmed a friend of mine, and when its full magnitude was disclosed it engulfed him. Like a pebble he sank into an ocean of despair; like a rock he broke beneath the weight of misfortune. 'My God!' exclaimed his daughter, 'I never knew that a father could go to pieces like that.' Her old daddy had failed her."

"There ought to be no greater bitterness to a parent than to have a memory of forfeiting a child's confidence. There can be no greater earthly joy nor a greater temporal blessing than to have a father as much loved as he never failed you. Next to the confidence in the goodness of God and the certainty of heaven, there is no such reassuring and sustaining faith as that of a child in the moral integrity and love of mother and the absolute reliability of an old daddy."

RECENT DEATHS.

The funeral of John G. Kleenaz, a well known blacksmith of the East End, took place from St. Martin's church on Wednesday morning and was attended by many sorrowing friends. The deceased resided at 715 East Madison street, and his death occurred on Sunday evening. He is survived by his brother, Charles Kleenaz, a well known resident of the O'Hannon section of Jefferson county.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kenefick, of 1125 Maple street, are receiving many expressions of sympathy from their friends on the death of William K. Kenefick, their seven-year-old daughter, who died of diphtheria. Prior to his illness the youth was employed as an apprentice at the L. and N. shops. Besides his parents two brothers survive, James and John Kenefick, Jr. The funeral took place from the Cathedral on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Catherine Hallinan, a beloved matron of St. Cecilia's parish, died at her home, 2130 Portland avenue, on Wednesday as the result of a stroke of paralysis suffered on Monday. The deceased was born in Ireland, but had spent nearly all her life in Louisville. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Patrick Gilman, Mrs. Larkin Adams and Giltman, all of Louisville, and John P. Hallinan, of Cincinnati, and Thomas Hallinan, of California. The funeral took place from St. Cecilia's church yesterday morning.

The funeral of Miss Ada B. Coakley, who died at the family residence, 2521 Griffiths avenue, early Monday morning, took place from St. Cecilia's church on Wednesday morning. On Wednesday of last week she attended the marriage of her sister to Edward Fries at St. Cecilia's church. Soon after returning home she became ill and continued to grow worse until her death. Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Coakley, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edward Fries, and two brothers, William and Edward Coakley.

PLANT PEANUTS.

Five cents worth of roasted peanuts can be made to last a long time if you are not too hungry, but why ever think how much longer it would last if you planted fresh unroasted ones? Try planting a few kernels in a pot or box of loose, mellow earth. Keep in rather warm place and water moderately. The kernels will soon sprout and the plant grows quickly. As the foliage spreads gracefully over the pot you will be surprised to find how beautiful the plants are. Indeed florists grow them for sale. They are well worth the slight care they require, and the plant has some interesting habits that sharp-eyed boys and girls will enjoy watching.

CATHOLIC

Educational Congress Attended
by Several Thousand Delegates.Scathing Arrangement of Carnegie Foundation by Jesuit
Father.Big Fund to Enlist Sympathy in Favor of Irreligious Schools.

MANY NUNS IN ATTENDANCE

One of the greatest, if not the greatest, gatherings of the Catholic church ever held in the United States for purely educational discussion took place in Chicago on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. It was the eighth annual congress of the National Catholic Educational Association. All the business sessions were held at the De Paul University. More than 3,000 delegates were in attendance. Many of them were teaching nuns. Besides the delegates many Chicago teachers were present at one or more of the sessions; in fact more than 1,000 nuns from that city attended the various sessions of the parochial school department. The Rev. Father Henry Spalding, S. J., was in charge of the parochial school session.

The Very Rev. Edward Dwyer, S. J., presided over the deliberations of the parochial session, which dealt with the preparation of young men for the priesthood alone. The officers of the National Catholic Educational Association are: Honorary President, Cardinal Gibbons; President General, Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, D. D., President of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C.; Secretary General, Rev. Francis W. Howard, Columbus, Ohio.

The topics discussed at the different sessions and in various sections related almost entirely to Catholic educational institutions. The object of these congresses is to unify systems of education in parochial schools, colleges, academies and seminaries. The only topic that approached a discussion of matters outside the Catholic church was the paper read by the Rev. Timothy Brosnahan, S. J., President of Loyola College, Baltimore.

Father Brosnahan made his address at the opening session of the congress on Tuesday. It was a scathing attack on the alma and alleged tendencies of the Carnegie Foundation. His views were supplemented by a general discussion led by the Rev. Matthew Schimacher, C. S., of Notre Dame, Ind.

Father Brosnahan said in part: "A fund of $15,000,000 in bonds of the United States Steel Corporation providing retaining allowances for certain executive institutions will enlist the interest of influential personages in the stability of the Pittsburgh millionaire's industrial balm."

"These we may reasonably suppose would scarcely look impartially on legislative inquiries or enactments that would imperil the value of their securities. The result of investing the United States Steel Corporation bonds in the foundation could scarcely have escaped the acumen of so astute a business man. 'The Carnegie Foundation affords a motive to university and college Presidents for discharging professorships when they have reached the dead line. Personal or financial reasons may make the professor's presence desirable to the university President, affording a way for promotion to some younger man. 'If the evils of despotism are in store for us should we permit monopoly of education by the Government, which, after all, with us can be called to account what may we expect from a private, permanent, self-perpetuating corporation backed by millions of dollars and irresponsible to the public, whose one aim is to bring into disrepute schools under definite religious control; to bond together non-sectarian schools selected mostly for their actual or prospective strength; through them to get control of the higher education of the country and finally to establish educational unity and coherency by an educational system which is necessarily hostile and skeptical in its attitude toward religious truth?'"

FOR WOMAN'S EYE.

Large dots of chenille are seen on many volles. Black braid on checked materials is quite the favorite trimming. Tailored suits of linen or silk are showing revers of bright colors. French millinery shows the tendency for ribbon, silk and velvet bows.

Head is a factor to be reckoned with in the planning of new dresses or suits. Irregular shapes and plenty of uncurled ostrich plume mark the latest large hats as a rule. Striped sheer linen is favored for simple little frocks, china blue and white being the most popular. Artificial flowers are being worn in bouquet form on tailor made suits or afternoon dresses, the small flowers being used.

On bouases the sailor collar and cuffs are of contrasting material and color. There is the ever popular foulard, dotted, striped and plain, that is combined with linen, batiste, challis and silk.

NO ORPHAN ASYLUMS.

Orphan asylums are unknown in Australia. Every destitute orphan child is sent to a private family, which takes care of it until it is fourteen years of age, and is remunerated by the government.

What They Have Been Doing
the Past Week—General
News Notes.

Seventy-five candidates were initiated by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Springfield, Mass., last week.

Division 3 meets Monday night. All who can should attend, as they will hear some interesting reports.

President Murphy will not detain the members of Division 1 Tuesday night, but urges the members to attend.

The visits of the county officers to the local divisions are creating a renewed interest in the Ancient Order.

The membership in New England is about 40,000, and effort is being made to increase the number 10,000 during the present year.

This is the time for county and division officers to make preparation for large class initiations during the fall and winter months.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets next Wednesday night, and as the business will be of utmost importance it is hoped to see the hall crowded.

Division 19 of Waltham, Mass., has authorized its committee on field day to expend $3,000 for the attractions and events to be held on Labor day.

The Hibernians of San Francisco have purchased a hall and home in that city for $25,000. It will be used as permanent headquarters for city and county.

Wide awake to the opportunities to increase their membership, the divisions in Plymouth county, Mass., held a great class initiation last Sunday in Rockland.

Hibernians in Cambridge, Mass., are talking of a new building in some central portion of the University City. A meeting will be called to take initial steps in that direction.

Wednesday night Division 2 meets at Campbell and Broadway. President Ford wants every member present, as he will announce his appointments for the coming Hibernian reunion on July 20.

Two thousand excursionists accompanied the Providence Hibernian Rifle on their trip to Newport. Gen. Rogers and State President Matthews and Secretary Martin were guests of the regiment.

Indianapolis Hibernians will be prominent in the Commercial Club Fourth of July celebration. Three floats will be decorated for the Ancient Order—one for the juvenile division, one for the auxiliaries and one for the divisions.

Division 1 of Syracuse, N. Y., held a social session last Monday night, and the members, wives and families were present. The feature of the evening was a lecture by the Rev. Father William M. Dryer, of the Syracuse Cathedral, who told of his recent visit to Ireland and the Holy Land.

COUNTRY PICNIC

For Rural Church Near O'Bannon's On July 4.

The workers for the picnic to be given at Silver Lake Park, on Charles Klemenz's place, near O'Bannon in this county, next Tuesday, July 4, are meeting with every possible encouragement. Good country meals will be served on the grounds. There will be good music and other amusements. Whatever funds accrue will be devoted to the Catholic church at Pewee Valley.

The Rev. Father Boes invites all his Louisville friends to attend the picnic and assures all a pleasant time. The chairman of the committee that are working hard for success are Peter Helman, John and Frank Huber. The ladies of the O'Bannon and Pewee Valley vicinities are noted as good cooks, and none who visits the picnic need go away hungry.

COUCHMAN—SCHAETZLY.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at Holy Name church, South Louisville, on Wednesday morning when Miss Anna May Couchman and William Schaezly were united in matrimony by the Rev. Father John O'Connor. The bride wore a gown of white marquisette and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary Seng, Mary Rosfield and Margaret Holmes. They were attired in pink and carried pink carnations. The ushers were Arthur Stener, of North Vernon, Ind.; Joseph Reichert, of Seymour, Ind., and John Maguire. The flower girls were Misses Tinnie and Margaret Debler. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schaezly left for a Western trip that will include St. Louis. After August 1 they will be at home to their friends at Lynnhurst.

MOVING PICTURES.

The Casino and Orpheum have this season shown a number of extraordinary dramas, and it is a gratifying fact that not one of these films have been suggestive or dangerous in any sense. Each picture, before it is presented to the public, is run off for the private view of the management, and if it is not suitable from a moral standpoint it is promptly canceled. Next week new pictures will be shown with the regular changes and illustrated songs.

STELTENKAMP ANNOUNCES.

William R. Steltenkamp, Constable in the Fifth Magisterial district, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself. Mr. Steltenkamp is one of the most popular young men in the East End. On the death of his father, Tony Steltenkamp, two months ago, his son was appointed to fill the vacancy. He is making good in the office and his friends wish to see him retain it.
